

Second round of the GRI Readers' Choice Awards starts on 1 January 2008

Short-list to be Announced 31 December

Nearly 800 sustainability reports are currently in the running for the inaugural GRI Readers Choice Awards. Our sustainability report is also taking part. On December 31st the field of eligible reports will be reduced to a short-list based on reports with:

- the highest volume of scores received (not highest scores!)
- the widest diversity of scorers (employees, media, civil society, investors, management and governance, etc)

Be sure to get your scores for the short-list in before 31 December 2007. Reach out to others in your community and encourage them to score the reports of your interest. Don't miss this chance to send a message to the organizations you have a stake in and let them know what is good and not-so-good about their reports!

Give your opinion about this and other sustainability report by going to www.awards.globalreporting.org. Sustainability report readers have the opportunity to score a minimum of two sustainability reports and contribute to deciding which reports best communicate their economic, environmental, and social performance.

Scoring will remain open only for the short-listed reports until 31 January 2008. Winners will be announced at the Global Conference on Sustainability and Transparency in Amsterdam 7-9 May 2008. The more reports you score the higher your chance of winning one of these trips.
