6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Indonesia's rich and unique natural resources are significant assets and provide important support to its economy. Its forests and marine and coastal resources are of global importance because of their rich biological diversity. However, all resources—water, marine and coastal resources, forests and land— are under severe stress. Inadequate management and over exploitation have caused resource depletion and environmental degradation. While these resources are still substantial and Indonesia's economy will remain natural resource-dependent in the short-term, unsustainable management of these resources will aggravate environmental degradation and adversely affect the livelihood of many people, particularly the poor. The ongoing administrative and fiscal decentralization provides opportunities for increased local participation in development activities and increased transparency in resource allocation and management. It is necessary to enhance capacities of the local governments and sector agencies for implementing a sustainable development program. b. Goal and purpose: The State Policy Guidelines, adopted by the People's Consultative Assembly in 1999, dictate that the natural resources should be managed to ensure that their carrying capacity is preserved for the welfare of

present and future generations, and to protect the national wealth of biodiversity. The Guidelines require enacting legislation to provide for gradual delegation of authority for managing rural resources to the local level. The Guidelines give special attention to the empowerment of local communities, traditional and nongovernmental institutions for natural resources management. The Government's five-year plan, Propenas 2000-2004, builds on the above Guidelines requiring transparency in the allocation and management of natural resources, and increasing community participation in decision making.

c. Components and outputs:
The major components of the TA will include (i) building capacity of sector agencies and local governments for environmental protection and natural resources management; (ii) promoting community and civil society participation in resource assessment, allocation and uses; (iii) restoring degraded resource base and measures to reduce pollution; and (iv) strengthening policy and regulatory framework and enforcing laws in recognition of the crucial role of good governance.

d. Expected results and deliverables:
Natural resources will be managed by strong and efficient local government and sector agencies with the participation of local communities, and NGOs.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: ADB's goal in rural development is to establish a vibrant, sustainable rural economy that will lead to achievement of the Government's target of rural poverty reduction by 40 percent from 2001 to 2020. Rural development involves pro-poor, environmentally sustainable agricultural growth that feeds into a similar growth of the rural nonfarm economy. The development of agricultural markets is key to increasing returns to agriculture and inducing broad-based rural development. ADB's ongoing agriculture and rural development strategy study will identify the role of the state in promoting the growth of the rural nonfarm economy in different types of agriculture in Indonesia. The technical assistance will assist in translating recommendations of the study on this role of the government into concrete recommendations for institutional development to foster the development of agricultural markets. The technical assistance will in particular identify institutional development needs at the local government level to support agricultural market development such as the establishment of marketing boards, regulatory and certification services, and other similar public services. The project supports the CSP thematic focus of meeting local rural development needs.

b. Goal and purpose: The project goal is to improve market access for agricultural products. The project purpose is to assist the Government in identifying concrete institutional development initiatives to improve the access of agricultural products to local and international markets. c. Components and outputs: The technical assistance will provide an overview of public, semi-public, and private agricultural market development institutions in other countries. The technical assistance will then identify institutions that are key to agricultural market development in different types of agriculture in Indonesia. Finally, the technical assistance will provide blueprints and action plans for the establishment of these market development institutions including recommendations for the distribution of responsibilities between the central and local governments and the role of the public and private sectors. The technical assistance will identify capacity building needs at different levels to establish such institutions. d. Expected results and deliverables: (i) Blueprints and action plans for the establishment of market development institutions. (ii) Identification of required skill mixes and capacity building initiatives. e. Social or environmental issues or concerns: The technical assistance will pay particular attention to the improvement of market access for agricultural products that are typically produced by women and other disadvantaged groups. f. 6. Description of assistance a. Background: The country has no unified identification system for administering social security or social insurance. Members within one program can have multiple ID numbers and accounts from working in different provinces and/or for different enterprises. Unconsolidated statements result in inefficient management and administration, and could result in potential loss of benefits to members. A unified identification system is important to provide for portability of benefits. A lack of a common identification number and inadequate management information systems also make it more difficult to address problems related to under-reporting or misallocations of contributions. In April 2002, Presidential Decree No. 20 of 2002 established a National Social Insurance Team to (i) prepare the concept and organization for a national social insurance system, and (ii) prepare a draft National Social Insurance Law for submission to the State Secretary for endorsement by the President for Parliament in 2002. The development of a unified identification system will be needed to support the implementation of a national social insurance system as envisioned under such law. In addition, a national dialog on the improvement of the Citizen's Administration System has been underway since 2000 under the Ministry of Administrative Reforms, supported by technical assistance from German

Technical Cooperation (GTZ) in the framework for the Support for Good Governance Project. This dialog has involved stakeholders from (i) government institutions at all levels; (ii) civil society; and (iii) the private sector and has provided important inputs on issues and concerns for national identification systems and applications. b. Goal and purpose: The ADTA will provide analyses, options and recommendations for establishment of an effective unified national identification system for social security to provide improved administration, operating efficiencies, and management and payment of members' benefits. The ADTA will support the development of a unified identification system in coordination with the Ministry of Administrative Reforms, the President's Team for National Social Insurance, Ministry of Home Affairs and the Ministry of Manpower and Transmigration.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Urban waste in large cities is a serious environmental concern. Sanitary landfill has been a standard practice for urban solid waste management to minimize secondary impacts, such as pest transmission and groundwater contamination. The methane gas generated from the sanitary landfills is usually collected and burned to reduce emission of greenhouse gas. The collected gas could also be used as alternative cleaner fuel for household uses or power generation in large landfill sites. While the standards and guidelines on sanitary landfill are still lacking, the proposed TA will improve the environmental management of the country by assisting the EA to develop appropriate standards and guidelines for sanitary landfills and identifying opportunities for the IA to be involved in solid waste management and commercializing the use of methane gas from sanitary landfills. b. Goal and purpose: The goals of the TA are to (i) reduce the impact of methane, a greenhouse gas generated from solid waste management by setting up standards and guidelines for sanitary landfills; (ii) conserve energy sources by making the best use of the methane gas as a cleaner energy; and (iii) improve solid waste management. c. Components and outputs: Two major components will be included in the TA, namely, (i) solid waste management standards and guidelines, with focus on sanitary landfill; and (ii) mechanism to commercialize the use of methane gas from sanitary landfill.

Outputs will include: (i) review of the existing solid waste management regulations and practices in the country; (ii) estimate of potential methane gas generation from a sanitary landfill in the country; (iii) review of technology available for the use of methane gas from sanitary landfills; (iv) preparation of standards and guidelines for sanitary landfills; (v) preparation of guidelines and procedures on commercialization of landfill gas.

d. Expected results and deliverables:
Standards, guidelines and procedures associated with sanitary landfill and the use of landfill gas.

e. Social or environmental issues or concerns:
The TA will improve the standards and operations of solid waste management and living environment and reduce the emission of green house gas once the recommendations are adopted and implemented by the Government.

f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables:
The TA will include training seminars and workshops to disseminate the TA results and deliverables.

7. Proposed executing/implementing agencies: Ministry of Environment and Jakarta administration; and PGN (state-owned natural gas company).

8. Nature/extent of government/beneficiary involvement in identifying or conceptualizing the assistance:
The proposal was identified by PGN and it has done some preparatory work in identifying a suitable technology. Further consultations are envisaged with the Ministry of Environment and the Jakarta administration. Discussions will also be held with agencies (including those in the private sector) that are engaged in waste collection and disposal.

Goal and purpose: Building on the findings of RETA 6013 Strengthening Sub-Regional Cooperation in the Transport Sector in BIMP-EAGA and IMT-GT Regions, the TA will further promote regional cooperation in the transport sector by developing a sub-regional transport cooperation strategy for Indonesia, aimed at improving the efficiency of transport systems between Indonesia and neighboring countries, including East Timor. c. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: During the economic crisis, ADB provided a sector development program loan "Social Protection Sector Development Program". The policy matrix of SPSDP set a framework to address long standing issues concerning equity, quality and efficiency of education. Key elements of the policy matrix included decentralization of education management. Following the economic crisis, Indonesia underwent major political and administrative changes. This includes enactment in 2000 of the Laws 22 and 25 on Fiscal and Administrative Decentralization. Education is one of the 11 public sectors devolved to the local governments (districts). In 2000, the Government requested ADB to provide assistance in decentralizing education management, through a series of technical assistance and loans to support the process of building capacity, operationalizing and institutionalizing decentralized education management. ADB subsequently included in the Country Program these assistances. For the technical assistance, a series of advisory TA was included to provide phased and flexible support to respond to issues and requirements that are identified in the process of decentralizing education management.

The first advisory TA was approved in 2001, and the implementation started in 2002. This TA focuses on (i) establishment and implementation of the transition management and monitoring unit (TMMU) at the ministry of education, to monitor the process and impacts of decentralizing education management, (ii) initial capacity building and assessment of long term capacity building requirements in selected districts, and (iii) up-streaming of experience and issues at the district/school level in implementing the devolved responsibilities, particularly with regards (but not limited) to issues related to education planning and finance. The Government stressed that the support provided by ADB focus on implementing and “facilitating” the decentralization process, rather than providing support that results in a set of recommendations. b. Goal and purpose: The Decentralized Education Management III (the TA) will assist in further examination, identification and implementation of options to address priority issues emerging in the process of decentralizing education management. It is anticipated that the priority issues and initial analysis of options will be established through the Decentralization Education Management phases I and II. It is expected that the third phase of the TA will focus on equity, effectiveness or efficiency of the decentralized education system (including issues related to education finance), addressing issues related to regulatory, administrative or procedural constraints at the national and/or local levels. c. Components and outputs: To be determined based on outcomes and recommendations of Decentralized Education Management I and II. d. Expected results and deliverables: To be determined based on outcomes and recommendations of Decentralized Education Management I and II. A set of priority policy and strategy issues and recommendations for possible integration into the next cycle of PROPENAS and PROPEDAS. 5. Responsible ADB officer(s): J. Jeugmans 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Education and health services are the essential services for human development. The role of the Government is to ensure that these essential services are accessible to all and to guarantee their quality. With decentralization, the provision of education and health services is now the responsibility of the local governments. If this offers opportunity to better address local needs in an appropriate manner and with local participation, it also implies local capacity building and strong technical support to the local governments concerned, in particular in Indonesia where decentralization is being implemented at a fast pace. ADB already has some experience in supporting local governments in the delivery of health and education services: two projects are under implementation in selected districts / provinces and ADB is preparing other projects to cover other districts. In some districts where both health and education are supported by ADB projects, it is now clear that an integrated approach to capacity building for social services will greatly improve good governance, efficacy and efficiency of the local governments. Papua is a particularly poor and difficult region of Indonesia. The Government has requested ADB's support for human resources development since 1998, during the economic crisis. Because of the political context

and the remoteness of the area (making frequent supervision difficult), ADB adopted a cautious approach. With now some experience in handling decentralized projects in education and health, ADB should be able to respond to the Government's request and support social services in Papua.

The TA will help policy dialogue with the local government, in particular to ensure strong local ownership and full participation of the indigenous people. Because this policy dialogue and involvement of the local/indigenous people is so important, no date / amount has been fixed for the possible ensuing project loan.

b. Goal and purpose:

To improve health and education status of the population in Papua, as part of the Government's and ADB's poverty reduction efforts, through better accessibility and improved quality of local health and education services.

c. Components and outputs:

- (i) capacity building of the local governments (good governance) to ensure access to essential and quality health and education services for the local population (with the support of the (not-for-profit and for-profit) private sector);
- (ii) health services: improved access, quality and efficiency.
- (iii) education services: improved access, quality and efficiency.

d. Expected results and deliverables:

- (i) capacity of the Papua local governments to first maintain and second develop and improve the delivery of social services;
- (ii) local essential health services that are more easily accessible to an increased percentage of the population, provide quality services as indicated by improved health status indicators, in a more efficient way (health system organization); HIV/AIDS is a local health issue that requests special attention.
- (iii) local education services (focus on basic education, including primary and junior secondary levels and adult literacy) that are more easily accessible to an increased percentage of the population, provide quality services adjusted to local needs and culture, in a more efficient way (education system organization).
- (iv) delivery of civil works, equipment, training and fellowships, operational research and system organization

e. Social or environmental issues or concerns:

Project focus on social sectors. Emphasis on gender equity (access and quality of education and health services for women).

Social and cultural concerns of indigenous people will be specifically addressed through ensuring a strong local ownership of the proposals (development, implementation, maintenance and evaluation).

Environmental issues (related to civil works and medical waste) will be addressed if/as appropriate.

f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables:

- internet: project will be included in the "desentralisasi-kesehatan" web site developed under the Decentralized Health Services I Project;
- sharing of lessons learned with previous and following health and education sector projects;
- sharing experience with other development partners, in particular the World Bank, the European Union and the GTZ (German Cooperation, which supports strongly decentralization)

7. Proposed executing/implementing agencies: at the central level, TBD and local governments

8. Nature/extent of government/beneficiary involvement in identifying or conceptualizing the assistance:

- At the central level, BAPPENAS, the Ministry of Home Affairs, the Ministry of Health, the National Family Planning Coordinating Board (BKKBN), the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Religious Affairs; professional health sector and education sector organizations;
- At the local level, the local governments interested in the project, local non-governmental organization and the private sector.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: ADB's main governance focus is on decentralization and anti-corruption. Within anti-corruption an area for ADB support is key anti-corruption institutions. The proposed anti-corruption commission will be a key institution, once it will be established by law, which is expected to happen during 2002. In addition, the project will be a follow-up to a previous TA to support the drafting of the law on the anti-corruption commission. b. Goal and purpose: To establish capacity in the commission in relation to its mandate and tasks. The purpose is to provide solutions that will make the commission operate in accordance with its mandate and will be sustainable. c. Components and outputs: There will be several components related to investigation, prosecution and information and policy-making which are the three major areas of the commission. There will also be training components related to the various staff categories of the commission. Outputs will be preparation of an operations manual, development of internal regulations and documented training programs including curricula and training methodology.

d. Expected results and deliverables: Expected results are functioning procedures for operations and for coordination with other institutions and sufficiently skilled staff. In addition to normal consultants' reports deliverables will include internal regulations, the operations manual and documented training programs e. Social or environmental issues or concerns: n/a f. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: ADB's efforts in decentralization will be to ensure that local needs are met by improved governance system and institutions so that decentralization is effective in improving development and reducing poverty in the regions. An important ADB medium term objective in the decentralization area is improved local government capacities to effectively and responsibly utilize an emerging local government credit market. LGU borrowing is regulated by Law 25 of 1999 and by Government Regulation 107 of 2000. The regulation outlines the appropriate sources and types of regional government borrowing, the purposes to which borrowing may be put, restrictions on amounts that can be borrowed, and sanctions for non repayment. Essentially, it puts the responsibility for borrowing into the hands of the local government, including the decision as to the sources and currency of funds. However, Law 25 specifies that foreign loans can only be obtained through the central Government. It also specifies that long-term loans can be availed of for the financing of infrastructure which creates regional assets and produces income for servicing the loan and brings benefit to society. Regions cannot borrow beyond total limits specified for the regions. Regions are prohibited from entering into security agreements that imply a financial burden. In case regions fail to service a Central Government loan, deductions can be made from the DAU (intercept mechanism).

b. Goal and purpose:          Improve the existing legal framework to accommodate the development of a local government credit market alongside a new onlending mechanism, which could take any of the following forms, which are not mutually exclusive: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(i) Setting up a new institution at the central government level, either totally or partially owned by the central government, which manages the onlending of foreign currency loans to local governments and local government enterprises (BUMDs).</li> <li>(ii) Establish a range of regional institutions, in joint ownership by central and regional governments, and the private sector. They are to manage the onlending of foreign currency loans to local governments and BUMDs. These new institutions could also provide domestic sourced loans as well as consulting services in financial and project management. Regional Development Banks could be the nucleus of these new institutions.</li> <li>(iii) Allowing established banks to manage future onlending to LGUs and BUMDs with sovereign guarantees of the funds to IFIs and bilateral donors. However, the banks will carry the full credit risk of the lending to LGUs.</li> </ul> c. Components and outputs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(i) Amendments and changes to Law 22 and Law 25 of 1999;</li> <li>(ii) Amendments and changes to Government Regulation PP 107 of 2000;</li> <li>(iii) Institutional development support for the new window or institution;</li> <li>(iv) Capacity building at the municipal level in financial management; and</li> <li>(v) Preparation of start-up finance for selected local infrastructure investments</li> </ul> d. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Historically the disbursement procedures particularly the preparation and substantiation of withdrawal applications have been the sole responsibility of the MOF. In the context of decentralization, this function is gradually being decentralized to Executing Agencies. This has meant that EAs need to be trained better, MOF staff need to be re-aligned to focus on more effective project management, there needs to be a closer mesh between ADB and Government of Indonesia regulations with respect to disbursement procedures, and there needs to be a more effective MIS system starting with an effective MIS plan. b. Goal and purpose: The objective of this TA is to strengthen the institutional and operational capacity of the Directorate General of External Funds, by providing planning assistance in the decentralization of activities to the executing agencies, by developing an effective MIS plan for its loan accounting and project administration systems, by developing more effective report and monitoring systems, and by developing manuals that more closely align GOI and ADB requirements for disbursements. c. Components and outputs: The assistance will cover (i) consultancy costs for the development of better decentralized systems for disbursements and a more effective MIS plan; (ii) capacity building of MOF staff in financial management; and (iii) start-up costs for the proposed MIS system.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Inadequate technological innovation is a major constraint on agricultural growth and rural development in marginal areas of Indonesia. Location-specific agricultural technologies with a potential to reduce poverty are an important need of agricultural development in Indonesia. Agricultural research in Indonesia remains the responsibility of the central Government. Central provision is not the most efficient means of undertaking all research. Indonesia's decentralization program offers the chance to devolve some responsibility for agricultural research to local governments to improve the demand responsiveness and poverty focus of the research. The technical assistance will help plan and undertake decentralization of the agricultural research system. The project supports the CSP thematic focus of meeting local rural development needs through decentralization. b. Goal and purpose: The project goal is to improve the development and delivery of agricultural technology to meet local needs. The project purpose is to assist the Government in planning and managing the decentralization of agricultural research.

c. Components and outputs: The technical assistance will undertake an analysis of the types of research that should be undertaken centrally versus devolved to the districts; private versus public provision of research; the capacity building needs at various levels of a decentralized research system; the interfaces between centralized and decentralized research institutes; and other aspects that are key to planning the decentralization of agricultural research. Furthermore, since decentralization is likely to evolve gradually with many adjustments expected, the project will develop capacity within the system to plan and manage the decentralization. d. An important ADB medium-term objective in the decentralization area is improved local government capacities to effectively and responsibly utilize an emerging local government credit market. Complete and timely disclosure of information about borrowers is a necessary, if not a always sufficient, condition for the effective operation of any credit or securities market. That includes one for municipal securities where the subsovereign borrowers themselves provide the ultimate security. Information--consistent, complete, timely and comparable--is at the heart of judging the risks and rewards of investments. Emerging markets face particularly difficult problems with disclosure. Indonesia, like other countries, is undergoing dramatic changes in its fiscal structure, financial markets structure and regulations. The vague basis for local security or the former direct guarantee by the sovereign is being replaced by more specific pledges of assets and revenues. The ability of regional governments to generate resources to support themselves, or to generate surplus for general revenue purposes, depends on efficient technical and

managerial operations. Where there is primary reliance on local taxes or on intergovernmental transfer payments, information on trends in these compared to local expenses becomes vital to determining relative credit quality. b. Goal and purpose: The proposed ADTA will establish a database and analytical tools for credit analysis to be located at MOF for the use of banks and investors in municipal bonds. Credit analysis is a process where investors (or their advisors) examine available information regarding issuers and their obligations and seek to make judgments regarding the relative rewards from a particular investment versus the risks those investments entail. Creditworthiness, or credit risk, is typically taken to mean the economic, legal and political risk inherent in a particular obligation, or more succinctly, the default risk it embodies. That is distinct from the concept of market risk or interest rate risk which usually pertains to how the entire debt market (interest rates and exchange rates, in the case of foreign currency denominated debt) will perform. c. Components and outputs: The databank will cover the following range of indicators: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Economy</li> <li>• Structure and Management</li> <li>• Fiscal Performance</li> <li>• Financial position</li> <li>• Legal framework</li> <li>• Accounting and financial reporting</li> </ul> d. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Indonesia is a major oil and coal exporting country in the region, and because of its large population, also has a large domestic demand for primary energy. With the growing concern regarding the impact of energy use on the global environment, it is necessary to understand the issues and latest international agreements. Although Indonesia is not identified as one of the countries that is required to adopt reduction targets for carbon dioxide emissions, there is considerable opportunity to achieve lower emission levels in future energy services at a relatively low cost. This would benefit Indonesia economically and address global environmental concerns. b. Goal and purpose: Identify opportunities and mechanisms to achieve lower carbon dioxide emission levels and maximize the benefit from clean development mechanism, when the same is operational. c. Components and outputs: International and domestic consulting services, training, and seminars for disseminating information.

d. Expected results and deliverables: Study report and recommendations for policy changes, new legislation and regulatory guidelines. e. 8. During ADTA fact finding, other major stakeholders will also be consulted while finalizing the scope and implementation arrangements.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Indonesia has enormous resources of natural gas that can be utilized to meet growing domestic demand of primary energy. Being a cleaner fuel, with higher efficiency in combined-cycle power plants, its use has environmental benefits. To capture the economies of scale, it is necessary to integrate the market through major gas transportation trunklines that are designed to connect several production sources to consumers, who are geographically dispersed according to other advantages offered by the location. The public-private partnership offers an opportunity to address the market risk associated with such large investments during the early years of operations. b. Goal and purpose: Increase the efficiency in the energy sector and promote the use of a cleaner fuel. The TA will also identify opportunities for public-private partnership that will bring additional resources for investments. c. Components and outputs: International and domestic consulting services, capacity building, and seminars for disseminating information. d. Expected results and deliverables: Study report and recommendations for policy changes to implement a large infrastructure project under public-private partnership; and a feasibility report for gas transportation trunkline.

e. Social or environmental issues or concerns: This is envisaged as an advisory TA, which will have no social or environmental impact. The social and environmental aspects will be examined in greater detail when the feasibility report of the transportation trunkline is developed as an investment proposal. f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables: Seminars for disseminating information will be included in the TA.

A comprehensive gas development study will also be carried out in 2002. BAPPENAS, MIGAS and PGN appreciate the need for public-private partnership in trunkline development, further consultation will be carried out during the implementation of the ongoing advisory TA and the Fact-Finding Mission.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Indonesia is urbanizing rapidly. Sixty percent of Indonesians will live in cities by 2025. National aggregate poverty outcomes – as well as national aggregate economic outcomes – will depend largely on the performance of cities. Nearly 40 percent of Indonesia's poor are counted as living in urban areas, and many more urban poor are not counted because they return to their villages during the census. Meanwhile, infrastructure and urban services indicators show a poorly performing urban sector: (i) 30 percent of urban households occupy less than 10 square meters of floor area per person, (ii) 43 percent of urban households go without access to safe water and 30 percent of urban households without access to sanitation, (iii) only 50 percent of urban solid waste is collected, and (iv) 35 percent of urban areas lack proper drainage. These indicators are worse in urban neighborhoods that have a higher proportion of poor and near poor households – “poor urban communities.” Improvement in waste management and environmental management of poor urban communities will improve the lives of a large segment of Indonesia's poor, and this is a priority expressed by the poor themselves (PPTA 3646: Integrated Urban Development and Poverty Reduction Project). This priority is recognized in the draft Country Strategy and Program, Indonesia (CSP), which includes a long-term goal to improve the living conditions of low income urban households through improved local community environments. The proposed TA will contribute directly to this. It will also increase the capacity of

local governments to facilitate neighborhood environmental improvement programs. Building local government capacity is a strategic focus of the CSP b. Goal and purpose: The overall goal of the TA is to improve the living conditions of families living in urban poor communities. The strategy is supported by ADB's draft CSP. b. Goal and purpose: The long-term goal of the sector is to improve the efficiency, quality and relevance of education in a decentralized context. The purpose of the project is to formulate a comprehensive medium and long-term strategy for educational reform and development. The project will identify and prioritize key areas of investment. c. Components and outputs: The Project will include (i) clearly articulated policy reform agenda; (ii) institutional and capacity building especially at decentralized level; and (iii) an investment package for upgrading/modernizing school facilities.

6.	Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: The TA will help the Government to prepare a project that will continue ADB support for the implementation of decentralization in the social sectors in those areas not yet covered by other (ADB or World Bank) projects. The project will include (and perhaps be limited to) the eastern province of Papua. The TA will support decentralized social services, tentatively integrating health and education. While decentralization provides opportunities for better targeting of resources to the poor, technical and managerial capacities of local governments' staff and community participation must improve to fully realize this potential. A project dealing with health and education should facilitate policy dialogue, understanding and absorptive capacity by the local governments b. Goal and purpose: Goal: Improve education, health and nutrition status of the populations in the project area Purpose: Prepare a detailed project proposal, supported by the local governments concerned, that will help (i) ensure continuity of delivery of essential education, health and reproductive health services (including family planning), particularly to the poor, through local capacity building and development of

appropriate relations between central and local levels in the context of decentralization; and (ii) improve the quality of education, health and reproductive health services (including family planning) in the Project area through appropriate and cost-effective investments and reforms of the education and health system. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: One of the main factors contributing to gender inequality is that women, to a large extent, are excluded from political decision-making processes. In Indonesia, women comprise only 10 percent of Parliament seats, 4 percent of the highest echelons of the civil service and just 2 percent of village heads. Factors contributing to the low representation include traditional attitudes concerning the role and status of women, and also aspects of women's work burden, knowledge, skills and confidence. In the context of decentralization, the need to boost women's involvement in local level politics is particularly important. This involves establishment of strong political commitment to gender equality, local institutions responsive to gender issues, development of gender sensitive policies and building of capacity at the local level to facilitate women's political participation. b. Goal and purpose: The project goal is to increase the number of women in local politics and to gender sensitize relevant policies by strengthening the capacity of local government to respond to women's gender interests. The project's purpose is to improve women's possibility for influencing local politics and facilitate gender sensitive policies. The project will develop the capacity of potential female representatives and female representatives of local governments to perform more effectively, and improve the gender sensitivity of local government laws and regulations.

c. The capacity to combat fraud and corruption is generally weak in concerned internal auditing units, the inspectorates, and especially in regional inspectorates that have received a dramatically increased internal audit responsibility through decentralization without being provided with corresponding capacity increases. ADB will in 2002 strengthen the capacity of MSRI to combat fraud and corruption. The methodologies and results of that project could provide a basis for a similar project at the regional level, e.g. targeting one province and its districts. b. Goal and purpose: Strengthened capacity to combat fraud and corruption in regional inspectorates. It is part of ADB policy to implement projects through the Partnership to the extent possible because of its unique position in Indonesian society. In 2002 ADB will be implementing a project to support the outreach of the Partnership to three provinces North Sumatra, Central Java and West Papua. This project would represent a continued ADB commitment to the regional outreach of the Partnership. b. Goal and purpose: To further establish the Partnership at the regional level. The purpose is to strengthen the possibility for regionally designed projects to receive Partnership funding, to facilitate regional cooperation and stakeholder consultations and to contribute to progress in some key areas in which both the partnership and ADB places priority, such as decentralization and good governance, accountability and law enforcement, civil society participation and corporate governance. c. Components and outputs: Outputs will include methods for regional cooperation, stakeholder consultations, civil society participation and procedures for linking non-decentralized agency operations with the regional levels of government.

5. Responsible ADB officer(s): S. Wendt, Social Development Specialist (SESS) and Danya Hakim, Gender and Development Specialist, Consultant (IRM)
6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: The proposal for technical assistance complements the Indonesia Country Program emphasis on improving governance, including legal and judicial reform, building human capital, and, within ADB's program of assistance, improving aid effectiveness, within the overall context of decentralization. It also complements other country-specific regional initiatives to enhance policy, legal and administrative frameworks for involuntary resettlement. The TA follows on from a key regional activity, RETA 5935 (2000-2002), in which Indonesia was a participant. The decentralization process under way since 1 January 2001 applies also to the process of land acquisition and resettlement. This will necessitate attention to the planning, financing, approval, implementation, management and monitoring for land acquisition and resettlement at the regional level if ADB infrastructure projects (and other investment projects) are to proceed without bottlenecks and delays. This requires a careful analysis of the relative roles and responsibilities of the central Government compared to the regional Governments for land acquisition and resettlement matters. Under decentralization, the central Government retains the right to stipulate the requirements and standards for granting land titles, for land reform, for land administration, land service charges and the national cadastral basic framework. BPN, the National Land Agency, has responsibility for three major land law revisions, including the Law on Land Acquisition and the Agrarian Law. Regions will make their own regulations on land use permitting and their own arrangements for land registration and other matters, and, it appears, would generally be responsible for land acquisition, compensation and financing. The regions would need assistance to build capacity to plan, budget for and manage land acquisition and resettlement.

b. Goal and purpose:

The overall goal is to improve living standards and to reduce the risks of impoverishment through development induced displacement by setting standards in accordance with good international practice, supported by sound planning and consistent policy implementation. The purpose is to assist BPN and the regional governments to develop appropriate legal and regulatory documents on land management, land acquisition and resettlement, in the context of decentralized responsibility, and to build capacity at the regional level to plan and manage land acquisition and resettlement. This will help to reduce the risks and to streamline the preparation and implementation for future ADB and other nationally and internationally financed projects involving new construction or significant rehabilitation.

c. Components and outputs:

The TA will, first, support the emerging framework for decentralized environmental and land acquisition planning and management, assisting the central government to enhance the requisite national policies and standards for regional projects. This includes the finalization and approval of a new Law on land acquisition, which BPN has endorsed, through a process of consultation with key stakeholders at national and regional level. Second, the TA would facilitate the changes in function, organization, staffing, and capabilities required at the local government level to enable local government units (LGU) to perform against the revised mandates for land related matters. Third, it will increase awareness and strengthen the capacity of Local Government Units (LGUs) to implement and monitor the revised policy and regulatory framework. Fourth, it will build in-country capacity to conduct social and resettlement assessments, monitoring and evaluation for ADB financed projects during preparation and implementation, covering social assessment and resettlement. This will strengthen the supervision capacity of LGUs, and contribute to meet strategic objectives.

d. Expected results and deliverables:

- (i) Revised and enacted Land Acquisition Law, in accordance with Law 22 and 25/1999 and related laws and regulations, through consultation and workshops with central, Level I and II governments, and other key stakeholders.
- (ii) Regulations for the issuance of the Implementation Guidelines that would be used for developing decentralized land acquisition and resettlement planning and management at the regional level.
- (iii) Strategies developed and implemented for capacity building to strengthen local government organizational capabilities for planning, managing and monitoring resettlement activities, for financing these activities, and for formulating and supervising consultant contracts for specialized services, in line with the new Law and other Regulations and Implementation Guidelines.
- (iv) Capacity building plans to strengthen NGOs, universities, and research centers in conducting independent environmental and social assessments and in designing appropriate monitoring and evaluation systems for Resettlement Plans.

e. Social or environmental issues or concerns:

The TA will directly address ADB's poverty reduction strategy, which is central to the Indonesia country strategy, by reducing impoverishment risks in displacement. It also supports a key ADB social safeguard policy on Involuntary Resettlement. The proposed TA addresses important gaps between the existing policy and legal framework for land acquisition with ADB's Policy on Involuntary Resettlement, which reflects international standards. Presidential Decree 55/1993 and a related Government Regulation No. 51 of 1993 on Environmental Impact Assessment do not sufficiently cover the principles of replacement costs for compensation for losses (NJOP and local government assessment may result in compensation far below market rates); census survey as a basis to prepare a Plan; specificity in relocation and rehabilitation options, especially for the severely affected or vulnerable; compensation coverage for those affected persons with lesser, customary or with no formal land title; consultation, monitoring and evaluation; and coverage for private sector projects. Legal coverage is limited for sustainable alternative arrangements in cases where people affected face restricted access to depleted resources (for example, to national parks).

f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables: BPN at national level, and the regional governments would be responsible for disseminating the Law, regulations and guidelines developed under the TA. The institutions involved in capacity building work would also disseminate key documents through training and networking activities.
7. Proposed executing/implementing agencies: In Indonesia, the National Land Agency (BPN) has responsibility for drafting national land laws. Through its regional offices, BPN would support the preparation of selected implementation regulations at the kabupaten/municipal levels of government.

The CSP emphasizes the need for maintenance, rehabilitation and selective development of strategic transport systems, including interisland passenger and cargo movements, in order to facilitate trade and support economic growth and balanced regional development. b. Goal and purpose: Building on the achievements of Interisland Transport I, and within the context of decentralization, the Project will further help the Government reorganize interisland transport services and their connection to intransland transport networks, and rehabilitate and develop small ports and airports to facilitate economic recovery and reduce poverty in selected provinces. c. Components and outputs: The Project may include (i) rehabilitation and development of small ports and airports, (ii) public-private partnerships combining, for example, private sector provision of interisland transport services and public sector capital investments, and (iii) institutional strengthening and capacity building of port and airport operators, including local governments in the overall context of decentralization.

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: Supply of electricity in rural regions has a positive impact on the local economy as it introduces opportunities to mechanize activities and make them more efficient; helps to provide essential services like piped water supply and essential medicines that need refrigerated storage space; and improves the quality of life by providing households with a convenient way for lighting and entertainment. When households use electricity instead of kerosene for lighting, it is a more efficient use of energy resources and is beneficial to the health, particularly for women who spend more time indoors. This sector project will follow the proposed Local Grids Development Sector Project (planned approval in 2004) and will include regions and provinces that make greater progress in managing the sustainable development of the local power sector.

b. Goal and purpose: The goal will be to increase the quantity and quality of rural electricity supply, thus assuring greater economic activities in rural regions (additional electricity consumption in commercial and industrial categories); and providing better quality of life. The proposed sector project will also promote the use of renewable energy sources and private sector participation in supply and demand management aspects of the power sector. c. Components and outputs: Loan proceeds will be used to promote private sector participation in off-grid and grid-based power supplies, where economically sustainable, using renewable energy sources; and to strengthen and extend the electricity distribution network to connect new consumers and improve the quality of power supply. The intervention will be prepared as a sector project to facilitate implementation of a large number of small components in a widely dispersed geographical area. d. Expected results and deliverables: At present about 16% of the villages and about 45% of the households are yet to get electricity supply from PLN. The PPTA will examine the resources needed to reduce this gap and recommend planning targets for making electricity available to all in an efficient manner. e. Social or environmental issues or concerns: The project components will be small and have only nominal social and environmental impacts during implementation and operations. f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables: During PPTA implementation, local communities will be consulted when implementation of the component would involve resettlement, and detailed information regarding the consumers in PLN's waiting list would be assimilated to understand the possible impact of the project.
7. Proposed executing/implementing agencies: State-owned electricity company (PLN) and new provincial power companies that may be established in partnership with the provincial governments and the private sector.
8. Nature/extent of government/beneficiary involvement in identifying or conceptualizing the assistance: The sector project was identified after discussions with PLN and the Directorate General for Electricity and Energy Utilization. The Government already has a rural electrification program that involves the Ministry of Cooperatives, National Development Planning Agency (BAPPENAS), and Ministry of Environment. Beneficiary participation in conceptualizing the proposal is evident in long waiting lists of consumers seeking new and higher level of PLN connection.

6.	Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy:          Since January 2001, health service organization and management have become the responsibility of the local governments (districts). Development partners involved in the health sector, particularly ADB and the World Bank, have helped the Ministry of Health to implement the decentralization policy. A systematic analysis of the impact of decentralization not only on the health system and on health services delivery, but also on the health status of the population is needed after a couple of years of decentralization.           The existing health management information system may not be appropriate in the context of decentralization. Some data may be needed at the central level, not collected at the local level; new data may be needed at the local level, and some data previously collected may no longer be relevant. b. Goal and purpose:          Goal: Provide the central and the local governments with an appropriate health management information system in the context of decentralization          Purpose: Assess the health monitoring system in the context of decentralization, and analyze preliminary data to evaluate the impact of decentralization on the health status of the population c. Components and outputs:          System analysis, proposals for improvement, situation analysis

6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: The new Indonesian CSP recognizes legal and judicial reform as an important part of the focus on anti-corruption. The low quality of laws and lower quality of lower level regulations burden businesses and individuals and creates a high cost society. The law making process needs to be improved, inter-regional consultations mechanisms strengthened and effective mechanisms for stakeholder consultation introduced. Methods for regulatory assessment also need to be gradually established to assess a regulation's impact, and de-regulation. Finally, procedures for administrative decision-making should be defined by law and be similar in all public bodies ensuring legality, transparency, efficiency and timeliness. Improved and common administrative procedures would not only lead to increased efficiency and improved participation, they would also empower ordinary citizens to effectively deal with the administration and protect their legal rights. b. Goal and purpose: Improve quality and feasibility of laws and regulations through improved process for law making and improved regulatory management. Improve legality, transparency, efficiency and timeliness in administrative decision-making to empower citizens and businesses dealing with the administration.

c. Components and outputs: The project will include three main components. One will focus on the law drafting procedures including strengthened mechanisms for both inter-governmental and external consultations. The second component will focus on regulatory management including development and gradual introduction for regulatory impact assessment and de-regulation. A third will focus on procedures of administrative decision-making to increase legality, transparency, efficiency and timeliness. Outputs will be draft laws for law drafting and for administrative procedures, guidelines for regulatory management, and workshops for socialization. d. Expected results and deliverables: Draft law on preparation and issuing of laws and regulations; draft administrative procedures act; methodological framework for regulatory impact assessment and de-regulation and supporting guidelines. e. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: With decentralization, local governments have assumed new responsibilities for addressing gender equity issues. At the local level, however, financial and human resources are inadequate to address gender equity issues in relevant sector policies. Methods for ensuring equity and effectiveness in local government programs need to be established to ensure that national government commitments on gender equality are being implemented in an adequate manner at the local level. Gender sensitive budgeting is an important tool in this regard. Developing gender sensitive budgeting will promote equity and effectiveness in local government programs and implementation, and encourage accountability and transparency on the part of local governments for more efficient governance. Gender sensitive budgeting informs and enhances citizen participation and advocacy, particularly for women, by strengthening leverage and tools for policy implementation. The Project will establish gender sensitive budgets in selected pilot districts in partnership with local governments, assessing gender equity issues as reflected in the government budget at local level, and address these issues by implementing efficient and equitable resource allocation at local level. The project supports the following CSP themes: (i) gender and development; and (ii) good governance. b. Goal and purpose: The Project goal is to improve the status of women through efficient and equitable resource allocation and a local government budget policy that encompasses a gender perspective. The Project purpose is to share "good practices" on the design of gender budgeting, assist local governments with gender disaggregated data and assessment of existing budgets in terms of gender equality, and build

the capacity of local government officials and representatives of women's organizations to support gender sensitive budgeting. Gender budgeting will provide a good understanding of how input affects out come which will improve the status of women through efficient and equitable resource allocation. Selected districts will service as pilot areas for implementation of gender sensitive budgeting. The project supports the following CSP themes: (i) gender and development and (ii) good governance c. Components and outputs: The Project components include assistance to local governments and community groups in reviewing procedures to prepare local government budgets, assess data available and gaps in the generation and use of gender-specific statistics, development of a gender-sensitive data base, hold workshops on gender sensitive budgets. The Project components also include establishment of gender sensitive planning mechanisms in selected districts and establishment of budget monitoring and evaluation processes and assessment of their gender impact. d. Expected results and deliverables: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(i) Improved accountability, transparency and increased civil society participation in budget preparation</li> <li>(ii) Identification of indicators, policies and mechanisms for increasing the gender responsiveness local governments' budgets</li> </ul> e. ### 6. Description of assistance

a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy:

Water supply and sanitation have been defined as one of the three "corridors" of influence, which have been agreed upon between the ADB and the GOI during the CSP 2002 mission. Support in this corridor will help turnaround the crisis faced by urban water supply enterprises (PDAMs) by providing a flow of sector reform support, PDAM operational support, and PDAM development capital. Sector reform support will focus on tariff structures, operational autonomy for PDAMs, and regulatory institutions. These aspects are essential preconditions for attracting private sector inputs. In order to address the needs of the sector ADB will prepare in 2003 an Indonesia Water Supply and Sanitation Sector Profile, which will complement other relevant projects including the Water Supply and Sanitation Sector project, the Community Water Supply and Health project, and a number of TAs.

b. Goal and purpose:

The goal is to deliver good quality, adequate and reliable water supply and sanitation services to urban and rural residents throughout Indonesia on a sustainable basis, with particular emphasis on delivering services to the poor.

The immediate objectives are to (i) provide an overview of the Indonesian WSS sector and its development trends, (ii) identify issues where improvements are needed, (iii) determine priority areas for policy and strategy development, and (iv) formulate a strategy for ADB intervention and program development in the sector. c. Components, outputs, specific deliverables: The scope of the sector profile includes (i) WSS sector review, (ii) institutions, policies, and program priorities, (iii) external assistance to the sector, and (iv) ADB's role. d. 6. Description of assistance(s) a. Background/linkage to country/regional strategy: In order to strengthen the implementation of gender equity and equality and women's empowerment, the Government of Indonesia has together with donor agencies, consulting firms and non-government agencies, developed a variety of gender training and approaches to meet the challenges of addressing gender concerns in institutions and in development programs and projects. Nevertheless, the impact of gender training has not been sufficiently assessed and even the limited available information regarding gender training reviews are not adequately disseminated. Existing information regarding gender training suggests that training materials developed thus far, are at times duplicative, not easily accessible by different agencies and that there is an extremely limited resource pool of trainers. In addition, there is also a limited availability of location-specific (cultural/religious/geographic) training materials, a key requirement for introducing gender to regional governments in the context of regional autonomy.

b. Goal and purpose: The goal of the ESW is to support the integration of gender concerns into national and regional policies, strategies and programs by providing information on effective and efficient approaches to introducing gender sensitivity to government and non-government organizations and groups. This will be conducted through national reviews and through the assessment of the implementation of gender concerns in five districts. The ESW will further strengthen existing inventories of gender training, and disseminate information of the review to the public and the government (regional and national). c. Components and outputs: The ESW will include three main components: (i) strengthening existing national inventories for gender training; (ii) assessment of the integration and implementation of gender concerns at the district level; and (iii) information dissemination. Through the first component, the ESW will (a) obtain a more up-to date inventory of gender training conducted at the national level and (b) provide a more thorough assessment of the impact of different types of training conducted. Through the second component, the ESW will (a) provide five district specific assessments of the integration of gender concerns from the socio-cultural, economic, religious, legal and administrative aspects. Through the third component the ESW will (a) conduct national and regional workshops to disseminate information and results obtained to key stakeholders and (b) disseminate information and results obtained on the internet for public review. d. Expected results and deliverables: (i) Up to date inventory of gender training conducted in Indonesia (ii) District level assessments of the integration of gender concerns post regional autonomy (iii) Inventory of gender training on the internet e. Social or environmental issues or concerns: The ESW will provide information on the implementation of gender concerns at the national and regional level within the context of regional autonomy. f. Plans for disseminating results/deliverables: As mentioned above, the ESW will disseminate findings through stakeholder workshops and through the internet.
7. Proposed executing/implementing agencies: N/A.
8. Nature/extent of government/beneficiary involvement in identifying or conceptualizing the assistance: Further formulation of the ESW will be conducted through extensive consultation with the Ministry for Women's Empowerment, Bappenas and other key agencies, including NGOs, at both the national and regional level.
