International Labor Standards

- Form of ILS

 - Conventions – legally binding when ratified

 - Recommendations- non-binding guidelines

- Kinds of ILS

 - Core ILS – set of four internationally recognized basic rights and principles at work

 - Other ILS – also important of more technical nature

- All ILS are binding and must be complied with when ratified
- Mere membership of ILO entails that the principles of Core ILS must be respected, promoted and realized in good faith by all ILO Members
- Strong promotion for universal ratification of core ILS

Ideas on the way forward for ILO-ADB Collaboration

- Consultations on how to promote CLS within the ADB, identifying needs of ADB to better implement CLS
- Documentation of good/useful practices when and where CLS are incorporated in the design and execution of ADB projects, including documentation of the participation of social partners concerned. This may include a review on CLS impact
- Awareness raising on ADB handbook among ILO constituents and other social partners
- Awareness raising and training of ADB staff and clients/partners on how to implement the CLS
- Joint ILO-ADB projects covering CLS issues
