

Kevin Holmes is a Professor in the School of Accounting and Commercial Law at the Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand, where he specializes in teaching and research in taxation. He was formerly a Principal Research Associate with the IBFD in Amsterdam, Head of the Bureau's Government Consultancy Department and a tax partner of an international accountancy firm. He now also works for IBFD Asia as a freelance Principal Research Associate. Dr. Holmes has undertaken a variety of tax consulting projects in many developing and transitional economies, and participated in a technical assistance programme carried out in 2005 to assist the Tax Policy Department of the Uganda Ministry of Finance, Planning and Economic Development to enhance its technical capacity in, inter alia, income tax. He has published widely on many aspects of direct and indirect taxation, including the book The Concept of Income – A multi-disciplinary Analysis, and The Uganda Income Tax Act - A Primer on Concepts and Structure, published by the IBFD in 2001 and 2006, respectively.
