To achieve this, such projects would typically address one or more of the following five areas/dimensions of gender equality and women’s empowerment, either as part of the overall outcome of the project (referred to by ADB as a “gender equity theme” project) or by incorporating them into specific project components (referred to by ADB as an “effective gender mainstreaming” project): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• women’s economic empowerment – access to finance/credit; micro, small and medium-sized enterprise development; agriculture development; value chain support; financial literacy and entrepreneurship training;</li> <li>• gender equality in human development – education, skills development and technical and vocational education and</li> </ul> training, including “nontraditional” female subjects/job sectors such as science and mathematics, engineering, technology; sexual and reproductive health and rights, sanitation, and prevention of gender-based violence;

- reduced time poverty of women – reduced drudgery and time spent on unpaid care and domestic work through basic infrastructure (transport, water, sanitation, energy) or affordable child, elderly or family care support;
- participation in decision-making and leadership – through community groups, local governments, and public and private sector management; and/or
- women’s resilience against risks and shocks including climate change and disaster impacts – environmental protection/ rehabilitation; flood and disaster risk management; budget support and social protection.

The above examples of eligible projects are for illustrative purposes only and no assurance can be provided that disbursements for projects with these specific characteristics will be made by ADB during the term of the Notes. In case it would be unable to apply an amount equal to the net proceeds of the Notes as provided above, ADB will apply the remaining proceeds thereof to its ordinary operations in accordance with the Agreement Establishing the Asian Development Bank.

Payment of principal of and interest on the Notes will be based solely on the creditability of ADB, and not on the performance of investments and loans under ADB’s projects on gender equality and women’s empowerment.

23 U.S. Taxation:

U.S. taxation disclosure is set out in Schedule 2 to this Pricing Supplement.

SCHEDULE 1

SELLING RESTRICTIONS

The United States selling restriction set out in paragraph 2 of the section entitled “Selling Restrictions” in the Information Memorandum is deleted and replaced with the following:

“2 The United States of America

Under the provisions of Section 11(a) of the Asian Development Bank Act, the Notes are exempted securities within the meaning of Section 3(a)(2) of the U.S. Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and Section 3(a)(12) of the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.”

The Singapore selling restriction set out in paragraph 6 of the section entitled “Selling Restrictions” in the Information Memorandum is deleted and replaced with the following:

“6 Singapore

This Information Memorandum has not been and will not be registered as a prospectus with the Monetary Authority of Singapore (“MAS”) under the Securities and Futures Act 2001 (2020 Revised Edition) of Singapore, as amended (“SFA”). As the Issuer is an international financial institution in which Singapore holds membership, pursuant to Section 279 of the SFA, Subdivisions (2) and (3) of Division 1 of Part XIII of the SFA shall not apply to an offer of the Notes to persons in Singapore and, accordingly, no prospectus is required to be registered with the MAS in relation to any such offer of the Notes.

Each Dealer has represented and agreed that it has not offered or sold and will not offer or sell the Notes, whether directly or indirectly, to any person in Singapore other than to (a) an accredited investor, (b) an expert investor, (c) an institutional investor, or (d) any other person that is not an individual (as such terms are defined in the SFA).”

SCHEDULE 2

U.S. TAXATION

The following is a summary of certain United States federal income tax considerations that may be relevant to a holder of a Note that is a citizen or resident of the United States or a domestic corporation or that otherwise is subject to United States federal income taxation on a net income basis in respect of the Note (a “United States holder”). This summary is based on laws, regulations, rulings and decisions now in effect, all of which are subject to change (possibly with retroactive effect). Unless otherwise stated, this summary deals only with holders who acquire the Notes as part of the initial offering of the Notes at their issue price and who will hold Notes as capital assets. This summary does not address tax considerations applicable to investors that may be subject to special tax rules, such as banks, tax-exempt entities, insurance companies, dealers in securities or currencies, traders in securities electing to mark to market, partnerships (or other entities treated as partnerships) for U.S. federal income tax purposes) and partners therein, persons that will hold Notes as a position in a “straddle” or conversion transaction, or as part of a “synthetic security” or other integrated financial transaction, or persons that have a “functional currency” other than the U.S. dollar.

Investors should consult their own tax advisors in determining the tax consequences to them of holding Notes, including the application to their particular situation of the United States federal income tax considerations discussed below, as well as the application of U.S. federal alternative minimum, estate and gift tax laws, U.S. state, local, foreign or other tax laws and special timing rules prescribed under Section 451(b) of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code.

Qualified Reopening

The Notes offered hereby will be issued in a “qualified reopening” of the A$700,000,000 3.70% Notes due 17 June 2025 issued on 17 June 2022 (“Original Notes”) for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Debt instruments issued in a qualified reopening for U.S. federal income tax purposes are deemed to be part of the same issue as the original debt instruments. Under such treatment, the Notes would have the same issue date, the same issue price and the same adjusted issue price as the Original Notes, respectively, for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Payments of Interest

Payments of interest on a Note (generally excluding any accrued interest for the 61 days from and including 17 June 2022 to but excluding 17 August 2022, discussed below) will be taxable to a United States holder as ordinary interest income at the time that such payments are accrued or are received (in accordance with the United States holder’s method of tax accounting). The amount of interest income realized by a United States holder that uses the cash method of tax accounting will be the U.S. dollar value of the Australian dollar payment based on the exchange rate in effect on the date of receipt regardless of whether the payment in fact is converted into U.S. dollars. A United States holder that uses the accrual method of accounting for tax purposes will accrue interest income on the Note in Australian dollars and translate the amount accrued into U.S. dollars based on the average exchange rate in effect during the interest accrual period (or portion thereof within the United States holder’s taxable year), or, at the accrual basis United States holder’s election, at the spot rate of exchange on the last day of the accrual period (or the last day of the taxable year within such accrual period if the accrual period spans more than one taxable year), or at the spot rate of exchange on the date of receipt, if such date is within five business days of the last day of the accrual period. A United States holder that makes such election must apply it consistently to all debt instruments from year to year and cannot change the election without the consent of the Internal Revenue Service (the “IRS”). A United States holder that uses the accrual method of accounting for tax purposes will recognize foreign currency gain or loss, as the case may be, on the receipt of an interest payment made with respect to a Note if the exchange rate in effect on the date the payment is received differs from the rate applicable to a previous accrual of that interest income. Amounts attributable to any accrued interest for the 61 days from and including 17 June 2022 to but excluding 17 August 2022 will generally not be includable in income, except to the extent of foreign currency gain or loss attributable to any changes in exchange rates during the period between the date the U.S. holder acquired the Note and the first Interest Payment Date. Any foreign currency gain or loss will be treated as ordinary income or loss but generally will not be treated as an adjustment to interest income received on the Note.

Amortizable Bond Premium.

A U.S. holder will be considered to have purchased a Note with bond premium equal to the excess of its purchase price for the Note (excluding the amount paid for accrued interest for the 61 days from and including 17 June 2022 to but excluding 17 August 2022) over the stated principal amount and may generally elect to amortize the bond premium as an offset to interest income, using a constant yield method, over the remaining term of the Note. Such election, once made, generally applies to all bonds held or subsequently acquired by the U.S. holder on or after the first taxable year for which the election applies and may not be revoked without the consent of the IRS. A U.S. holder that elects to amortize such bond premium must reduce its tax basis in the Note by the amount of the bond premium amortized during its holding period. A U.S. holder should calculate the amortization of the premium in the Australian dollar. Amortization deductions attributable to a period reduce interest payments in respect of that period and therefore are translated into U.S. dollars at the exchange rate used by the U.S. holder for such interest payments. Exchange gain or loss will be realized with respect to amortized bond premium on such a Note based on the difference between the exchange rate on the date or dates the premium is recovered through interest payments on the Note and the exchange rate on the date on which the U.S. holder acquired the Note. With respect to a U.S. holder that does not elect to amortize bond premium, the amount of bond premium will be included in the U.S. holder’s tax basis when the Note matures or is disposed of by the U.S. holder. Therefore, a U.S. holder that does not elect to amortize such premium and that holds the Note to maturity generally will be required to treat the premium as capital loss when the Note matures.

Purchase, Sale and Retirement of Notes

A United States holder’s tax basis in a Note generally will equal the cost of such Note to such holder, reduced by any amortized bond premium (as discussed above). The cost of such Note to a United States holder will generally be the U.S. dollar value of the Australian dollar purchase price on the date of purchase. The conversion of U.S. dollars to Australian dollars and the immediate use of the Australian dollars to purchase a Note generally will not result in taxable gain or loss for a United States holder.

Upon the sale, exchange or retirement of a Note, a United States holder generally will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realized on the sale, exchange or retirement (less any amounts attributable to accrued but unpaid interest not previously included in income, which will be taxable as such) and the United States holder’s tax basis in such Note. The amount realized will generally be the U.S. dollar value of the Australian dollars received calculated at the exchange rate in effect on the date the Note is disposed of or retired.

Subject to the foreign currency rules discussed below, gain or loss recognized by a United States holder generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the United States holder has held the Note for more than one year at the time of disposition. Long-term capital gains recognized by an individual holder generally are subject to tax at a reduced rate. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

Gain or loss recognized by a United States holder on the sale, exchange or retirement of a Note generally will be treated as ordinary income or loss to the extent that the gain or loss is attributable to changes in exchange rates during the period in which the holder held such Note. This foreign currency gain or loss will not be treated as an adjustment to interest income received on the Notes.

Reportable Transactions

A United States holder that participates in a “reportable transaction” will be required to disclose its participation to the IRS. The scope and application of these rules is not entirely clear. A U.S. holder may be required to treat a foreign currency exchange loss relating to a Note as a reportable transaction if the loss exceeds US$50,000 in a single taxable year if the United States holder is an individual or trust, or higher amounts for other United States holders. In the event the acquisition, ownership or disposition of a Note constitutes participation in a “reportable transaction” for purposes of these rules, a United States holder will be required to disclose its investment to the IRS, currently on Form 8886. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisors regarding the application of these rules to the acquisition, ownership or disposition of Notes.

Specified Foreign Financial Assets

Individual United States holders that own “specified foreign financial assets” with an aggregate value in excess of US$50,000 at the end of a taxable year or US$75,000 at any time are generally required to file an information statement along with their tax returns, currently on Form 8938, with respect to such assets. “Specified foreign financial assets” include any financial accounts held at a non-U.S. financial institution, as well as securities issued by a non-U.S. issuer that are not held in accounts maintained by financial institutions. Higher reporting thresholds apply to certain individuals living abroad and to certain married individuals. Regulations extend this reporting requirement to certain entities that are treated as formed or availed of to hold direct or indirect interests in specified foreign financial assets based on certain objective criteria. United States holders who fail to report the required information could be subject to substantial penalties. In addition, the statute of limitations for assessment of tax would be suspended, in whole or part. Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors concerning the application of these rules to their investment in the Notes, including the application of the rules to their particular circumstances.

Non-United States Holders

The IRS has ruled to the effect that interest paid to a non-resident alien individual or to a foreign corporation on securities issued by ADB is not subject to United States federal income tax, including withholding tax, except that, absent any special statutory or treaty exemption, (i) such interest, when derived by such non-resident alien individual or foreign corporation in the active conduct of a banking, financing or similar business within the United States or when received by a corporation the principal business of which is trading in stock or securities for its own account, is subject to United States federal income tax if such interest is attributable to an office or fixed place of business of such person within the United States and certain other conditions exist, and (ii) a foreign corporation which is an insurance company carrying on a United States insurance business is subject to United States federal income tax on interest on securities of ADB if such interest is attributable to its United States business.

The IRS also has ruled to the effect that (i) interest paid by ADB on its obligations constitutes income from sources without the United States and (ii) unless a death tax convention provides otherwise, debt obligations of ADB for purposes of the United States federal estate tax are deemed to be situated outside the United States and are not includible in the gross estate of a non-resident of the United States who was not a citizen of the United States. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 and subsequent legislation amended the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, under which the previous rulings were issued. ADB has been advised by its United States tax counsel that these amendments will not affect the IRS rulings described above.

The gain realized on any sale or exchange of the Notes by a holder that is not a United States holder will not be subject to United States federal income tax, including withholding tax, unless (i) such gain is effectively connected with the conduct by the holder of a trade or business in the United States or (ii) in the case of gain realized by an individual holder, the holder is present in the United States for 183 days or more in the taxable year of the sale and certain other conditions are met.

Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

The United States imposes reporting requirements, and in limited circumstances, backup withholding requirements, with respect to certain payments of principal and interest on debt obligations. Regulations issued by the IRS confirm that such reporting requirements do not apply to payments on the Notes made by ADB. Brokers, trustees, custodians and certain other middlemen will be subject to the reporting and backup withholding requirements with respect to payments received by them on, or proceeds realized on the disposition of, Notes held by certain United States holders. Foreign persons receiving payments on the Notes or disposing of Notes may be required to establish their status as such in order to avoid the filing of information returns by such middlemen, or the backup withholding of tax by such middlemen, in respect of such payments.
