The Australian Climate Finance Partnership (ACFP) is a concessional finance facility supporting climate action in Southeast Asia and the Pacific. It is managed by the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and funded by the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (DFAT) through a A$140 million grant contribution.

ACFP aims to generate a total portfolio valued at over US$535 million in Pacific island countries and Southeast Asia. ACFP seeks to catalyze financing for private sector climate adaptation and mitigation projects in the Pacific and Southeast Asia. ACFP projects will also seek to promote COVID-19 recovery, gender quality, and better economic opportunities for women and girls. ACFP aims to bridge financing gaps by de-risking and improving the bankability of high demonstration impact projects. ACFP aims to generate a total portfolio valued at over US$535 million in Pacific island countries and Southeast Asia.

ACFP offers a range of financing instruments including debt (United States dollar and local currency), equity, quasi-equity and mezzanine financing, guarantees/risk sharing, technical assistance, and grants.

ACFP targets project and corporate finance structures, as well as financing for financial institutions and private equity funds. ACFP projects will also seek to promote COVID-19 recovery, gender quality, and better economic opportunities for women and girls.
