Brief Description of the Project:

The proposed project focuses on a 50-km secondary road in central Georgia that provides access to the people living in the municipality of Kharagauli and the 13 villages along the road alignment. The project road connects Kharagauli to the East-West Highway, which is the main international transport corridor that traverses all the major cities of Georgia. The project will also improve national connectivity and reliability of the transport network by reviving the road's role as an alternative in the event that the East–West Highway is closed.
